ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

GCC NDMA would like to acknowledge the support provided by all those involved in the development of the SOPs. We are grateful to the previous team of GCC headed by Ms. Nyghat Siddique for coordinating and facilitating the entire process. The expertise of Ms. Elizabeth Cossor of UNICEF and Mr. Jawad Ullah of Save the Children UK were of immense value; as they not only reviewed the SOPs but also provided valuable insights which helped in making the SOPs more comprehensive and appropriate for all disaster situations.

Information and inputs provided by the DGs and relevant staff of R/PDMAs, UNICEF and Save the Children colleagues working at provincial level and representatives of civil society organizations during the provincial consultations greatly contributed in making the document context specific and conforming to the ground realities.

The document, although initiated in 2011, has been further reviewed and strengthened by GCC's current team based on NDMA's "National Policy Guidelines on Vulnerable Groups in Disasters." Finally, the overall guidance and encouragement of Chairman NDMA have been the driving force in finalization and approval of the document.

IMPORTANT DEFINITIONS

Child: According to article 1 of the UN Convention on Rights of the Child 1989): 'A child is anyone below the age of 18 years unless, under the (national) law applicable to the child, majority is attained earlier.' This refers to both girls and boys.

Child Protection: Child Protection is the measures and structures to prevent and respond to abuse, neglect, exploitation and violence affecting children and the promotion of their psychosocial wellbeing. It requires a multi-disciplinary and multi-sectoral approach including governments, multilateral agencies, donors, communities, care givers, and families as well as a close partnership with children. Child protection also aims to strengthen the capacity of all these actors to protect children and to develop effective and responsive systems and mechanisms.

Separated Child: Separated children are those, separated from both parents, or from their previous legal or customary primary care-giver, but not necessarily from other relatives. These may, therefore, include children accompanied by other adult family members.¹

Unaccompanied Child: Unaccompanied children are those who are separated from both parents and are not being cared for by an adult who, by law or custom, is responsible to do so.²

Orphan: Orphans are children, both of whose parents are known to be dead. In some countries, however, a child who has lost one parent is called an orphan.

Missing Child: A child registered as separated or unaccompanied but remains classified as missing until identified and reunified by parents/kin. A list of missing children is generated from reports by caregivers of their children whose whereabouts is unknown during a disaster. The child may have died, been abducted, or received by an agency/individual for temporary protection.

1. INTRODUCTION / BACKGROUND

In all emergencies, children are at risk of being separated from their families. Having lost the protection of parents or guardians during such a time, these children are more likely to experience abuse, neglect, exploitation and violence and hence this increases their level of vulnerability. Emergencies often cause breakdown in social structures and protective mechanisms normally provided by the State, the community, and the family. The State, as the main duty-bearer, thus has the overall responsibility to ensure a properly guided Standard Operating Procedure (SOP) to protect and promote the best interest of children during and after disasters. Therefore, the formulation of appropriate Standards/Guidelines has a vital significance in order to carry out the plan of action in a respectful, progressive, careful and professional manner.

The overall response to emergencies in Pakistan does not have a child protection focus and therefore requires specialized inputs. This is essential in view of the complexities and magnitude of child protection violations in Pakistan. Disasters not only increase the pre-existing vulnerability of children but subject more children to abusive and exploitative situations. Hence child protection interventions are imperative in all phases of disasters i.e. relief, recovery and rehabilitation, and require special attention.

Disaster Management, due to its complex nature and varied impacts, requires multiple actions towards the same output. For this purpose coordination in the efforts and certain levels of standards is crucial for achieving maximized results. It is important that all actions for disaster management be coordinated with the relevant government authorities. Dialogue and coordination mechanisms need to start in the early phases of the emergency, and be maintained throughout the process. Even for the relief and rescue workers, including the Army involved in evacuation, require maintaining minimum CP standards for operating in the field.

The National Disaster Management Authority (NDMA) is the lead agency at the Federal level responsible to deal with the entire spectrum of disaster management nationwide. It is the executive arm of the National Disaster Management Commission (NDMC), which works under the Chairmanship of the Prime Minister as the lead agency for policy making and coordination. In the event of a disaster all stakeholders, including Government Ministries, Institutions, Armed Forces, I/NGOs, and UN Agencies work through NDMA in a coordinated manner.

"To achieve sustainable social, economic and environmental development in Pakistan through reducing risks and vulnerabilities, particularly those of the poor and marginalized groups in the country, and to enhance country's ability to manage all disasters (floods, earthquakes, tsunamis, droughts, landslides, sediment disasters, avalanches, GLOFs, cyclones with storm surges etc.) using a comprehensive national approach.

The devastating floods of 2010 resulted in the largest mass displacement in Pakistan's history, with 11 million displaced persons. The rains brought flooding to as much as a fifth of Pakistan's national territory, which affected more than 10 per cent of the country's population of 181 million and the death of 1,700 people. Fifty per cent of those affected were women. One of the major realizations emerging from the 2010 floods was that women and children face particular challenges and that disaster response mechanisms are not equipped to deal with these challenges. Similarly other vulnerable groups like older persons and persons with disabilities also require special care, to which relief workers are not sensitized.

This realization prompted NDMA to establish a separate section within its premises, the Gender and Child Cell, to focus on the needs of vulnerable groups in disasters both at policy and operational levels. GCC's major responsibilities include providing guidance on new and existing policies and plans, and strengthening institutional mechanisms to respond to the needs of vulnerable groups.

Gender and Child Cell Vision:

Gender and Child Cell of NDMA is mandated to ensure that the needs and concerns of vulnerable groups_ gender, children, older persons and persons with disabilities are addressed in all phases and all types of disasters."

2. OVERALL GUIDING PRINCIPLES

Family unity: According to the principle of family unity (or integrity of the family) all children have the right to a family, and families have a responsibility to care for their children. Unaccompanied and separated children must be provided with services aimed at reuniting them with their parents or primary legal or customary caregivers as quickly as possible. If large numbers of children are separated from their parents or other relatives in an emergency situation, priority should be given to the most vulnerable, whether accompanied or unaccompanied, taking into account that the latter are likely to be more vulnerable.

Best interests of the child: This principle constitutes the basic standard for guiding decisions and actions taken to help children, whether by national or international organizations, courts of law, administrative authorities, or legislative bodies. The Inter-agency Guiding Principles on unaccompanied and missing children should be taken into account when determining the best interests of the child in a given situation.

Child's opinion: A child's opinion should be listened to and given due weight in relation to the child's age and maturity. Children must be kept informed about plans being made for them. This includes decisions about placement and care, tracing and reunification. Programs should actively engage children in responding to and prevention of separation issues in disasters

Do-no-harm: Care has to be given while dealing with children in emergencies in order to ensure that no harm is done to their physiological and psychological being. The explanation of graphic disaster details without inspiring hope can be dangerous for their personality. There is a fine line between showing children accurate depictions of reality along with useful information to teach or protect, and sharing too-explicit or graphic information which inadvertently harms or further traumatizes them.

Non-discrimination: One of the basic tenets of international humanitarian law is that the protection and guarantees it lays down must be granted to all without discrimination. Thus all four Geneva Conventions and both Additional Protocols provide that the “specific categories of person they protect must be treated humanely and without adverse distinction founded on sex.” The Convention on the Rights of the Child (CRC) reinforces this key principle and states that girls have additional, specific needs which have to be taken into account in programming for their care and protection.

Psychosocial support: Psychosocial support is the process of meeting a person's emotional, social, mental and spiritual needs. All of these are essential elements of positive human development. Psychosocial support is needed by all children. It promotes their psychological and emotional wellbeing and helps to build resilience in children. Nevertheless, children are resilient, but when faced with extreme adversity and trauma, they and their families can and do need extra support.

Psychosocial support builds internal and external resources for children and their families to be able to understand and deal with adverse events.³

Special needs of girls: The special needs of girls must be taken into account throughout the times of crises, conflict and their aftermath as well as man-made or natural disasters. They are more vulnerable to sexual abuse and exploitation as well as facing a higher risk of negligence when it comes to protection and aid. Appropriate responses must be developed at all stages of programming. As an example, consider the Security Council Resolution 1261 (1999) on children and armed conflict, which urges all parties to armed conflicts to take special measures to protect children, in particular girls.⁴

3. BEFORE THE EMERGENCY – PREVENTION AND PRESERVATION

There are a number of pre-emptive activities that can be taken before an emergency strikes in order to minimize separation of children from their families, even in extreme emergencies. Relevant authorities can be approached as well as other concerned parties in order to reduce the risk of separation and preserve the family unit under the difficult circumstances of displacement.

The roles of authorities responsible for preventing accidental and deliberate separation and promoting reunification must be based on an understanding of the causes of separation. In this regard, the list of measures for the prevention of separations includes⁵:

- ◆ Awareness raising amongst governments, staff of local and international NGOs, religious groups and communities, especially women, since they are the primary care-givers in emergencies about the importance of preserving the family unit for the child's benefit;
- ◆ Families in emergency prone areas need to be made aware of the importance of keeping the family together during an emergency and to decide a meeting point in the case they get separated;
- ◆ Parents and school teachers can teach children their name and place of origin as well as a mobile number of their parent(s) or a close relative;
- ◆ Encourage the issuing of name tags with Date of Birth for small children. Ensure that parents and community members realize the importance of the name tags and that the children carry them;
- ◆ Deliberate separations can be prevented by ensuring that all households have access to basic relief supplies and other services, including education;
- ◆ Organizations must ensure that their actions do not encourage family separations, when e.g. parents entrust their children to institutions or organizations hoping they will be better cared for with them. All sector-services must ensure that their services do not cause or are indirectly contributing to cause family separation;
- ◆ Support overall coordination and implementation of appropriate procedures and policies;
- ◆ Organizing and conducting first-aid trainings for the community in order to enable them in life saving skills; and
- ◆ Establishing early warning system and forming volunteer committees within relevant departments and organizations to be trained on rescue services. Revival of girl guides and boy scouts in schools at all levels, where children are sensitized and trained for self-help, where necessary.

During Evacuation

Children and other vulnerable people including females, older persons and persons with disabilities etc. should be evacuated from their place of residence together with adult family members. Evacuating children without family members should be kept as the last resort, carried out only after it has been carefully determined that protection and assistance cannot be provided in place and that evacuation of the entire family is not feasible or practically possible⁶.

Encourage families to keep identification documentations with them. Families should be asked whether they are caring for children other than their own, have children who are separated from their families, know of families who have missing children or know of children who are separated from their parents etc.

The concerned authorities at the point of origin should have appropriate knowledge on child protection issues and identification of the respective children for their special protection needs.

4. IDENTIFICATION OF SEPARATED AND UNACCOMPANIED CHILDREN

All SWDs/CPU, NGOs and other child protection staff working in displacement sites should be involved in the process of community mobilisation around child protection issues. Helplines such as 1121 / 1122 should immediately be functionalised and information regarding separated or unaccompanied children should be disseminated to the community or other self-made services managed by the community and such a mechanism should be interlinked with the district management. It can be anticipated, with the above steps in place, that the community members themselves will be able to identify separated and unaccompanied children and other children in need of protection, as particularly vulnerable and requiring special attention within the community. It must be kept in mind that it is very important to build a rapport with the community from the beginning so that identification of these children is done by the community itself because being community members they are considered to be in the best position to do so.

Children who should be considered as separated or unaccompanied are:

- ◆ Children separated before the emergency;
- ◆ Children living in spontaneous care arrangements with unrelated adults;
- ◆ Children living together with other related or unrelated children;
- ◆ Children living on the streets; and
- ◆ Unaccompanied children living in hospitals who are ready to leave.

Caseworkers and other mobilisation facilitators should help the community to identify appropriate and feasible solutions for these children, such as identification and monitoring, support for family tracing and reunification, and community support to address their care and protection needs. It may then be possible to identify community members and networks who can identify these children living amongst them and who can identify and refer children who are newly separated.

Organisations like Edhi Foundation have been rendering a valuable support to this cause, it is important therefore to involve them in coordination mechanisms developed to address the issues of child protection in disasters.

To that effect, things to keep in mind for protection of the separated and unaccompanied children are:

- ◆ Contact the camp manager and ensure that the camp management has registered such children in-line with camp management registration procedures;
- ◆ Organise emergency care in the community with a designated care provider, if required;
- ◆ Contact the agency responsible for FTR⁷ to evaluate the child's situation and then start tracing the family as well as provide mediation and/or referrals to different types of support services, as necessary; and

⁷ Family Tracing and Reunification

- ◆ Contact the agency responsible for child care and protection to organise an assessment of the child's living situation and coping mechanisms as quickly as possible.

Separated and unaccompanied children often know each other and should be asked whether they know of other children who are in the same situation as they are. These children however are not capable of identifying themselves, since they would not be carrying their Birth Certificate with them. In emergencies, where time is of the essence, identification documents are often left behind, even by adults. Unfortunately it is not a common practice in Pakistan to provide children in areas prone to disaster with name tags.

Therefore, keeping in view the aforementioned realities, as a first step; children who have been separated from their families or other care-givers must be identified. If a child's identity is not known, the relevant authorities should take appropriate measures to ascertain it.

Steps for establishing a child's identity:

- ◆ Capacity of staff at point of origin needs to be improved in order for him/her to be able to interview children and members of the community appropriately and gather the relevant data needed to identify the child;
- ◆ Interview a separated child in a child-friendly, quiet place by trained staff. Make the child feel as secure and safe as possible;
- ◆ Whenever possible, take photographs of the child and his/her belongings as part of the registration and documentation process, as soon as possible after the child's separation from his/her family;
- ◆ Use a standardized Reporting Format (Annex I: Separated / Unaccompanied Child Reporting Form);
- ◆ Keep all information confidential; and
- ◆ Use a Central Database for verification of the child's identity (through the birth register) and update it regularly. The verification process needs to be fast in order to shorten the time of the child being separated from its relatives. Early assessment must be completed in order to establish the extent of family separation and the situation.

4.1 Registration and Documentation:

At the point of origin, i.e. first contact with the separated / unaccompanied child (NGO, Police, Social Welfare Department staff/CPU's, Dar-ul-Aman staff, etc.) a Separated / Unaccompanied Child Reporting Form (SRF), as provided in Annex I should always be filled in with maximum possible details to facilitate tracing of relatives or for family reunification.

During the registration process, unaccompanied and separated children should be registered individually keeping accountability / responsibility factor in mind, but cross-referenced to the family they are staying with. Local authorities and field offices should keep a registry wherever a separated and unaccompanied child is identified.

A large number of children in Pakistan have no Birth Certificate or any other documentation. In emergencies, it is very difficult to register those children and later on trace their families. It is therefore highly recommended to register all relevant information in the Separated / Unaccompanied Child Reporting Form (SRF) and later on to feed all information to a central database accessible for all stakeholders.

Registration:

Each identified child should be registered with key personal data i.e. full name, date and place of birth, father's name and mother's name, former address and present location. This information is collected for the purpose of establishing the identity of the child, for protection and to facilitate tracing. The child's identity, including nationality as well as the identity of his or her family must be recorded and preserved through uniform registration formats. Organizations caring for separated children must seek to obtain the documentation needed to record children's identity and affiliation, if known⁸.

Verification of Birth Certificate and Emergency Documentation:

Although the Convention on the Rights of the Child calls for all children to be registered "immediately after birth," However, in Pakistan majority of births go unregistered. Many children are registered later in life, such as when they enrol in schools. This leaves many children without proper birth registration at the time they are separated from their family. If a child's identity is not known, the relevant authorities should take appropriate measures to ascertain it. A new identity should be established only as a last resort and after all other steps to ascertain the child's identity have been exhausted.

4.2 Documentation and Data Management:

A central database for uniformly recording the cases of separated and unaccompanied children should be established where all the cases can be recorded with the whole background information and tracked. It should have provision for updating data from the district level. NADRA is already working at all levels with swift registration centres. Linkage should be developed with NADRA for the times of crisis and community should be sensitized on the importance of documentation and registration with national database.

Beyond registration, a more thorough documentation and data management of each unaccompanied child is required in order to establish the child's personal history and individual needs and to begin tracing for the family. Legal responsibility for unaccompanied children rests with the government. An unaccompanied child should have a legal guardian with respect to involvement in any legal proceedings and to advocate for the child's interests or to make decisions on behalf of the child in other situations.

The Reporting Form (Annex-I) should be forwarded to the following organizations:

- ◆ NADRA or NDMA shall register all information in the Central Database and share information with other stakeholders
- ◆ A copy shall be forwarded to respective R/PDMAs
- ◆ A copy shall be forwarded to Social Welfare Department (SWD)
- ◆ A copy shall stay with District Coordination Officer (DCO)
- ◆ If NGO fills out the form, it should also keep a copy
- ◆ A copy should be shared with the institution where interim care is being provided

Online Data Management:

As mentioned earlier there is no central database available in Pakistan for uniformly recording cases of separated and unaccompanied children. There is an urgent need for establishing a central database with a provision for uploading data from the district level. It is recommended that NDMA should take the lead role in this regard. The database initiated by Punjab PDMA can be a good starting point for this.

KP-CPWC database can be interlinked with PDMA for the purpose of utilizing the objective. User ID should be provided separately for each department /organization in order to have centralized data base at the provincial level.

4.3 Referral System:

It can be defined as a network of all the public sector, private sector and non-profit organizations working for the protection and provision of the rights of the children affected by the emergency and disaster to which the child can be referred for different services.

Currently, in most of provinces a sound referral system for referring the child for different services does not exist due to lack of coordination among different stakeholders. This often results in wastage of resources and duplication of information. There are some NGOs working on the issues of missing children that have established resilient referral networks of service providers throughout the country.

These networks need to be studied and used for the case management of separated, unaccompanied and missing children.

Steps for referral system management:

- ◆ Establish Referral and Reporting System- A list of referral partners of different stakeholders (SWD/CPU's, NGOs and other community level services) should be in the hands of the Social Welfare Department. An updated contact list and the MoUs should be organized and made available on line;
- ◆ Ensure that all duty bearers understand their responsibility and role. A clear MoU and guidelines should be developed and signed by all stakeholders;

- ◆ All cases of reported abuse, neglect and violence against children must be referred immediately to Social Welfare Department /CPU for immediate action;
- ◆ Disseminate the reporting system widely to the community, including children, to ensure that the children are aware of their rights;
- ◆ Remove the child from the unsafe places- all protection services should collaborate and coordinate with medical institutions, police and justice departments and the child protection unit of the Social Welfare Department; and
- ◆ Ensure referral meetings take place on a quarterly basis as well as emergency/need basis to discuss case load, reflect on effectiveness of system and change where appropriate.

Follow Up and Monitoring:

Follow-up refers to a range of activities for children and their families to facilitate their reintegration. These activities may include social and economic support and psycho-social counselling. Follow-up is usually required for family reunification. In the case of other forms of placement, such as a foster family or adoption, follow-up is also necessary. In this regard, the orders of the Court/competent authorities must be duly considered.

4.4 Guidelines for Care of Separated Children under the Age of 5 Years:

All children are entitled to protection and care under a broad range of national, regional and international instruments, including the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child. Caring for separated children under the age of five is different from caring for older children since they are even less able to express personal views and preferences than older children who might be able to read, write and be able to identify themselves and their relatives.

In an emergency the following steps for the children under the age of five should be activated at the point of origin:

- ◆ Find families willing to care for babies and children who are separated from their own families. The assistance of community leaders, religious leaders, women's associations, community health volunteers and others would be supportive keeping in view the court and competent authority;
- ◆ Involve community members in decision making from the beginning. One way to do is to help to create a Child Welfare Protection Committee, comprised of key community members, religious leaders, teachers, social workers and parents. Child Welfare Committees can develop the standards of care for separated children and the criteria for foster families and then monitor the care of separated children in foster families; and
- ◆ Determine if there is any problem of abuse or neglect and the care arrangement is adequate before deciding to move a baby child to the foster family. In all cases, required special care must be provided and monitored regularly by the concerned department/ organisation and the court and competent authority should be regularly updated.

5. INTERIM CARE

In all arrangements for the care of children, the child's opinions about its placement and care should be listened to and given "due weight." (CRC, Art. 12).

5.1 Temporary Care Arrangements:

Interim Care: If it is not possible to immediately identify or reunite the child with the family, it becomes imperative to identify interim care measures. All efforts should be made to identify a family based care option, such as relatives, foster care-givers, or other members of the community and should be based on the child's best interest. Only if it has not been possible to identify a family based option, should residential care such as, an interim care centre be considered. Children who cannot be reunited with their families within this time frame should have a 12 week placement review to determine if they should continue to remain with their current care-givers or if they should be moved to a more suitable placement. Care arrangements must leave open the possibility of family reunion.

The number of institutions with the capacity to provide interim care of separated and unaccompanied children is very limited throughout the country. Most of the existing institutions are permanent care institutions, that are not geared towards providing interim care and do not have the protocols and guidelines available for this purpose (List of such institutions in the country is attached as Annex II).

NOTE: Selection of Caregivers

- ◆ Family based Care centre should be the priority in selecting the interim care facilities.
- ◆ It should be culturally appropriate
- ◆ It should be approved and certified by the Local Authority /Social Welfare Department
- ◆ It should be organized around the needs of the children

5.2 Key Principles for Placement of Unaccompanied Children in Interim Care:

- ◆ Place children in small groups. The child feels more secure and is easier to care for.
- ◆ Always place siblings together; also children who know each other, friends and children from the same geographical area should be put in the same group where possible.
- ◆ Make sure each child is registered, with a separate file; a copy of the unaccompanied child's file should always travel with the child.
- ◆ Immediately notify the local authorities and the community of the child and keep in touch for follow-ups.
- ◆ Try to prevent long-term institutionalization, the faster the child is reunited with its family, the less traumatized he/she will be.

- ◆ Ensure that child protection standards are met. Take specific care of the needs of girl children and of children with disabilities.
- ◆ All children have to be supervised by appropriate staff at all times, especially the small ones. Make sure that the procedures in the care facility are transparent and accountable.
- ◆ Create and enforce national minimum quality standards through certification of the alternative care facilities.
- ◆ Regular inspection, monitoring and reporting should be made mandatory.
- ◆ Take legal actions against unregistered or unauthorized care providers.

NOTE: Alternative care

Alternative care is a form of care that involves a child living with a family other than his/her parents is often a care placement lasting more than 12 weeks. Suitable longer term care provision includes foster care, kinship care, small group home, supported child or peer headed households or independent living.

5.3 Foster Care:

While tracing the parents, a child should be placed with a family which would ideally be willing to take care of the child. It must also be ensured that the foster family thereof would also be willing to give the child back to the parents if they are located. Secure and organized fostering arrangements are necessary if the family cannot be traced immediately. Close monitoring of the family based care facilities and regular information on how family tracing efforts are proceeding should be carried out.

Steps to ensure while deciding for foster care:

- ◆ Ensure that any placement of children with families other than their own is consistent with traditional child-care practices (CRC, Art. 20.3);
- ◆ Ensure that each unaccompanied child has a continuous care-giver and who meets the developmental needs of the child; and
- ◆ As for children living with families other than their own, where an unaccompanied child is living with someone other than a relative, the relationship should be respected if the child's needs are being met.

As with all unaccompanied children, those living with other families should still be identified and documented, and the quality of their care arrangements should be assessed and monitored. This process must be done carefully so as not to disrupt the care relationship or encourage care-taker families to abandon or hide the presence of such children.

5.4 Guidelines for Group Care:

Where family placements are not possible, small group care within the community can be arranged. This should normally be only an interim measure, especially for younger children. Social Welfare

Department has the responsibility to carry out a proper assessment before placing children in group care. Mature children supervised by adults from their own culture may be placed in group care facilities.

If an adolescent is taking responsibility for his or her younger siblings, group care may be an alternative for a limited period of time. Regular monitoring should be done to identify any violation of CRC and support should be given to the adolescent to be able to appropriately care for the minors. Institutional placements, such as orphanages, should be avoided and the creation of orphanages should be discouraged.

5.5 Placement of Separated Children in Family Based Care:

Guardianship should be used in administrative or judicial proceedings wherever the system exists to support it, as it provides an important safeguard for ensuring that children's rights and best interests are upheld. In large-scale disasters, where it will be difficult to establish guardianship arrangements, the rights and best interests of separated children must be safeguarded and promoted by organizations working on behalf of these children.

Most separated children do have parents or other family members willing and able to care for them and with effective tracing they can be found. For the best interests of the separated child a family based interim care should be the first priority until the tracing of the parents has been completed.

5.6 Follow-up and Monitoring of Interim Care:

- ◆ Monitoring should be done regularly and reports must be submitted to SWD/CPU's. Budget shall be allocated for the said monitoring and follow up purpose.
- ◆ A special Reporting Form for follow up should be incorporated and checklist for monitoring should be used along with action plan.
- ◆ The child should be referred for his/her wellbeing, which will be in his/her best interest and order of the courts / competent authority in this regard should be followed.
- ◆ The trained social worker should be made accountable for monitoring the overall situation and services provided by the care givers.
- ◆ Any kind of abuse, neglect or threat related to child welfare observed during or after monitoring must be reported and referred to relevant authorities to provide prompt actions.

6. FAMILY TRACING

Tracing is the process of searching for family members or primary legal or customary care-givers. The term also refers to the search for children whose parents are looking for them. The objective of tracing is reunification with parents or other close relatives. Family tracing and reunification have been emphasized and promoted as the most important durable solution for unaccompanied and separated children by all UN-agencies and the National Government.

The process of tracing and reunification of the children identified as separated and unaccompanied in different provinces in Pakistan has so far been carried out in an informal way and does not follow uniform guidelines. NGOs tend to use informal means to trace families. In certain cases the district administration has been involved in the process but the tracing is mostly done through links to the community. There are no set guidelines available for NGOs and other stakeholders for reunification and so NGOs follow their own procedures (Tracing and Reunification Flow Chart attached as Annex-III). These include: written statements by parents, copy of ID cards and photos of the reunification.

6.1 Tracing Families:

- ◆ Verification must always be carried out. It is a built-in protection for the tracing system. It checks that the person claiming the custody of child is, in reality, who they claim to be.
- ◆ It can also be used to confirm that the relatives are willing and able to take the child and that the child wishes to be reunited with these relatives.
- ◆ Mobilize the resources at the local Point of Origin. District Coordination Officer (DCO) should coordinate the tracing process and ensure that involvement of NGOs and CBOs in tracing follow a prescribed guideline and reporting system.
- ◆ Social Welfare Department should be involved in the tracing and family reunification process. After the reunification and closing of the case, the information must be fed into the database.
- ◆ Local police should be involved in tracing families. Police networks throughout the country should be able to easily facilitate the tracing process.
- ◆ In emergency situations the Military and other rescue workers can be involved in tracing and reunification.
- ◆ Community leaders, local mosques can also be instrumental in tracing process. But all tracing initiatives should be recorded and coordinated with the DCO and SWD.
- ◆ Confidentiality of information should be strictly maintained.
- ◆ Plan and develop long-term solutions for children whose families are not traced despite all efforts.

6.2 Tracing a Missing Child:

One of the findings observed during the field monitoring visits was that the issue of missing children is on a large scale and not just during times of emergency. In 2010, in Karachi alone 3029 cases of missing children were reported to police. According to an NGO named ROSHNI the number of missing children during the early stages of the emergency was quite high due to the lack of coordination and capacity of the workers to deal with the issue.

The issue of missing children finds little acknowledgment in Pakistan despite the fact that it is a serious and growing problem. This is partly because of the lack of understanding regarding missing children and their documentation in the relevant departments, which leads to little to no information flow on this issue.⁹

- ◆ Lodging an FIR with the local police station
- ◆ Meeting of the coordination committee
- ◆ Information to the police stations of the adjacent areas
- ◆ Information to and activation of the network of partners
- ◆ Information to the management of camps
- ◆ Printing of leaflets containing information and if possible photographs of the child and widespread displays of posters and leaflets in camps, police stations and bus stations

7. FAMILY REUNIFICATION

Reunification is the process of bringing together the child and family or previous care-provider for the purpose of establishing or re-establishing long-term care.¹⁰

The separation of children from their families is often traumatic and can have long lasting consequences in a child's grooming and well-being. In order to minimize further distress resulting from a period of prolonged separation, it is important that family reunification occurs with the least possible delay. Expedited procedures are particularly necessary to reunify separated children with their parents or surviving adult relatives to avoid emotional harm caused by separation.

7.1 Steps in Reunification:

- Step 1 Proof of Claim: It should be mandatory to verify any kind of proof/evidence such as family photographs or any other adequate documents (Birth Certificate or Identification document) of the claimant.
- Step 2 Photo identification by the child: The child must be involved in the reunification process and the "best interest of the child" principles must be the guideline for reunification. If any photograph is available, the child should be allowed to identify the family members and reconfirm the relationships with the claimer.
- Step 3 Community verification: Verify the claimer's relationships with the child. The local community members, local police station should be involved before any reunification takes place to ensure the security of the child.
- Step 4 The consent of the child is of vital importance in preparation of family reunification.
- Step 5 In some cases, an assessment of the family situation should be conducted before reunification takes place.
- Step 6 Upon positive verification of the claimant and consent of the child, handing over by the child should be done in presence of DCO or Social Welfare officer or Police authority.
- Step 7 Handing-over document should be signed on closure of the case.

7.2 Steps for Follow-up after Family Reunification:

Once the child is reunified the responsibility returns to the family and to a certain extent to the community to ensure the welfare of the child.

- ◆ Almost all children after reunification need special psycho-social support (due to traumas, distress of separation and other disorders). They should be monitored by the Social Welfare Department or a community level mechanism (NGO may be given approval on behalf of SWD to follow-up, monitor the case and report). The family should report regularly to Social Welfare Officer in the local community.
- ◆ A child with special needs that were identified before the reunification needs special support due to his/ her disability and should be monitored and supported regularly. If necessary a - referral to other relevant service providers in consent with the parents is to be carried out.

- ◆ All follow-up and monitoring should be done by trained a social worker or NGO worker who has comprehensive knowledge on CP, although regular visits as general support to the family, linking it with community support is helpful.
 - ◆ All monitoring should be recorded and fed into a data system.
 - ◆ If required, material support can be given to the family in order to avoid further separation or traumatizing the child: through support with some basic needs like food support, school fees and some economic assistance.

NOTE: Follow-up and Monitoring

Currently, in the provinces there is no established mechanism for the follow up and monitoring of cases where children were reunified with their parents. NGOs working in field indicated that lack of human resources and capacities are the main reasons for the irregularity of follow up and monitoring of cases. Since all reunifications are done in an informal way without legal and proper involvement of SWD or any other government official in the districts, there is no follow up and monitoring from the government side either for these cases. NGOs do follow up, but it is an informal process and there are no official formats available to record the findings. Most follow up is carried out via phone and is limited to a few questions to the child about his or her wellbeing.

8. ALTERNATIVE LONG-TERM ARRANGEMENTS

The best long-term solution for an unaccompanied child should be made based on best interest of the individual child and depend on the specific merits of any particular case. The determination should follow the procedure below:

- ◆ Assessments and decisions on a long-term solution for unaccompanied children must be taken by Social Welfare Department (SWD) including experienced child welfare personnel. Cases must be thoroughly assessed on an individual basis.
- ◆ The procedure should permit the effective participation of the child and, as with status determination, arrangements be made for him or her to be represented.
- ◆ Where possible, the views of the parents or who are replacing parents should be obtained.
- ◆ Case histories and documentation on unaccompanied children are to be shared by organizations assisting them. Ensure that as much information as possible is provided about family, relatives and friends to enhance tracing efforts.
- ◆ In each case, a minor's evolving mental maturity must be determined in the light of the personal, family and cultural background (CRC art. 12). Qualified child welfare workers should be involved in the process of interviewing unaccompanied children.

8.1 Referral of Children into Residential Care:

This should be done as a last resort, even as an interim care solution and should be done based on the following criteria:

- ◆ The child has a disability or health issue that requires specialised care that is not available in the community, but is available in a centre.
- ◆ A child needs care on a temporary basis pending reunification or the identification of alternative care and no other interim care options are available.
- ◆ A child needs a secure environment that cannot be guaranteed through other forms of alternative care.

Referral to a Safe House: Girls and boys who have been exposed to or are at risk of abuse and exploitation and whose security cannot be guaranteed through alternative care options, may be referred to a safe house.

NOTE: Placement Needs Categorisation

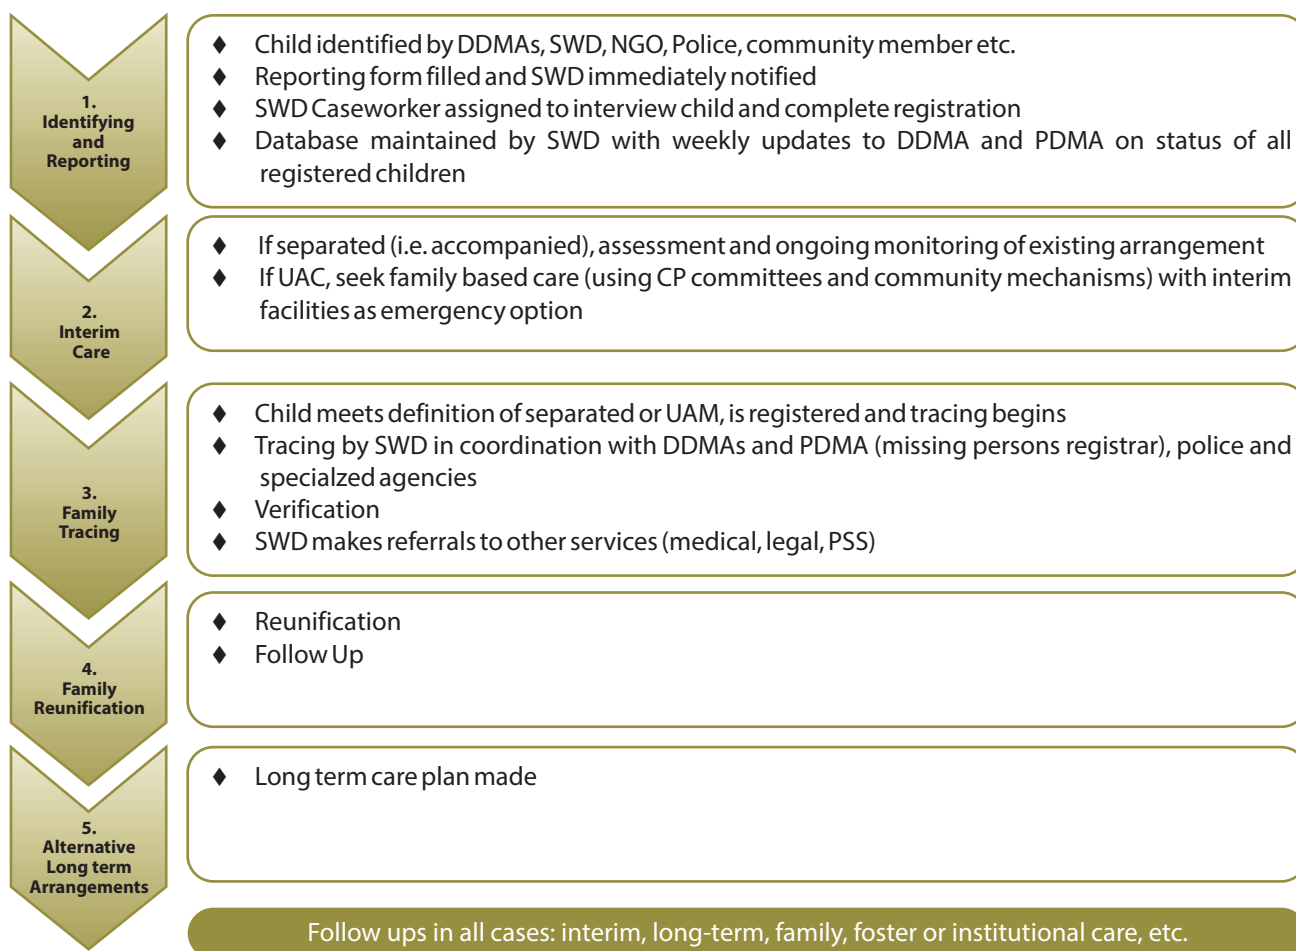

When determining whether a child should be referred to residential care, the caseworker should categorise their need as urgent (high risk) or standard, and consider what other interim care options may be suitable and available. The caseworker should coordinate with the SWD to identify a suitable placement.

9. SUMMARY - CASE MANAGEMENT:

Case management will be coordinated through the provincially developed and endorsed 'action charts' for Unaccompanied and Separated Children (consolidated version attached as Annex IV). Each stakeholder will follow the 'steps', and adhere to the 'actions/activities' outlined in the charts. Steps include coordinated reporting and monitoring (facilitated by the Child Protection working group or cluster if activated, and relevant DDMA, R/PDMA and NDMA), and case management (led by the Social Welfare Department).

These provincial action charts are working documents and will be updated biannually by PDMA (in coordination with GCC NDMA and the child protection working group or cluster) in order to reflect up-to-date Government structures, stakeholders, and focal points within respective agencies.

The following chart shows the different steps to be taken for case management of separated and unaccompanied children during the emergencies: it provides frameworks for dealing with both separated and unaccompanied children as the requirements of both are different. Whereas unaccompanied children need a full range of services, the separated children may only require monitoring and follow up.

Additional Information: The Inter-Agency Working Group on Unaccompanied and Separated Children (UASC) has developed a registration form for UASC Children (and other vulnerable children) in emergencies. The package includes a rapid and extended standard registration form for recording key information relating to separated children, as well as a brief guidance note on how to use these forms. All the organisations, NDMA and R/PDMAs involved in programming for UASC may refer to these forms as they are now standardized at global level and based on best practices. It may require contextualisation at national level to make it specific to Pakistan. (Inter Agency Working Group UASC Children Registration Form and Guidance Note attached as Annex-V).

Guidance Note to fill the IAWG UASC Children Registration Form

This Guidance Notes is aimed at supporting field/social workers to complete the agreed inter-agency registration form for unaccompanied and separated children and should be read together with the form, before starting to register children. It should be used as part of the training for field/social workers on techniques for interviewing children in emergency contexts. The extended registration form follows a similar content but collects more complete information to support the full case management process. Both these forms can be used as they are or contextualized.

1. Before starting the interview as well as at the end, you should explain to the child, using child-friendly language, what information about them is being collected and why.

Include:

- ◆ Your name, who you work with and what your agency does.
 - ◆ You will ask some questions about the child – ask if that is OK and explain that he/she doesn't have to answer questions if they don't want to.
 - ◆ Explain you will be taking notes so that you remember what is said – ask if that is OK.
 - ◆ Explain that you need to share some information – explain with who and why – ask is that is OK.
 - ◆ Reassure the child that if there is any information they do not want to share, they can say so.
2. Before starting the interview, review what information is already available on the child. If the child has already been interviewed by another organization, try to find that information and make sure you do NOT ask the same questions again.
3. The shaded areas of the form are for you to complete without asking these questions directly to the child. This information should reflect case coding and the analysis of the child that the field/social worker makes and their recommendations for follow up and next steps.
4. The wording of the questions on this form should serve as a guide. The way questions are phrased and how they are asked should be adapted according to the age of the child being interviewed, how willing they are to give information, the nature and sensitivity of the question, and the local context and culture.
5. Section 1 – Data Confidentiality:
- a. In order to be able to answer these questions, please explain to the child what the information will be used for, what information will be made public, how their identify will be kept secure and confidential and how sharing certain information may help with successful tracing. Ask the child what they agree with.
 - b. Ensure the child understands and feels free to say if they do not want certain information to be made public –you can get this information in various ways, either asking the child whether he or she would feel safe or would have any reason to worry if you shared the information with specific people or authorities, or observing the child and understanding what information they may/may not want to share and with whom.

6. Section 2 – Child’s personal details:

- a. A Separated child is any person under the age of 18, separated from both parents or from his/her previous legal or customary caregiver, but not necessarily from other relatives. These may, therefore, include children accompanied by other adult family members.
- b. An Unaccompanied child is any person under the age of 18, separated from both parents and other relatives or from his/her previous legal or customary primary caregiver and who is not being cared for by an adult who, by law or custom, is responsible to do so.
- c. Orphans are children, both of whose parents are known to be dead. In some countries, however, a child who has lost one parent is called an orphan. Most children who are separated from their families are not orphans and should not be referred to as such. It is important that a local -language term, or phrase, be found and used that conveys the sense of “children separated from their families”
- d. Urgent protection concern – please state here whether the child requires urgent intervention or not. The type of intervention required is further explored in section 7.
- e. Names – the structure provided on the forms is first, second and third name throughout. The name format will need to be adapted to each context.
- f. If the child does not remember her/his address before separation, please note other relevant information, such as descriptions of mosques, churches, schools or other landmarks (Allow the child to draw on the back of the form if you think this will help).

7. Section 3 – Wishes of the Child:

- a. If child DOES want family reunification – only enter details if they are different from the details collected in the previous sections. The registration form gives you enough space to collect information about 2 people the child would like to trace/locate. If you need additional space to enter more people, please use the back of the form, ensuring you collect all the necessary fields.

8. Section 4 – Family Details:

- a. If addresses of father and mother are the same, only enter them once and put ‘same as above’.
- b. If the child has been in contact with the mother and/or the father, state how this contact was made (telephone, letter, through a third party etc)
- c. Only enter details of primary caregiver if this was not the father or the mother.
- d. Family members the child is separated from: Please write down names or nicknames of significant others mentioned by the child. Registration form gives enough space to enter 3 people. If the child mentions more people that need to be recorded, please use the back of the form, ensuring you collect all the necessary fields.
- e. Family members/other important persons child is with: Please list any family members or other important person, including children of adults the child is travelling with. If the child is travelling with other separated or unaccompanied children, a separate registration form will need to be completed for each UASC. If the child is travelling with other adults please include any ID registration numbers collected which may help with identification. Do not record here details of the current care giver – this is collected in section 3. The table gives enough space to record details of 7 people.

9. Section 5 – Current Care Arrangements:

- a. Only record the address if it is different from the address entered in the previous sections.
- 10. Section 6 – History of Separation:
- a. Please give as much detail as possible here regarding the circumstance of separation which may help in tracing, remembering to use child friendly language and interview techniques.
- 11. Section 7 – Protection concerns:
- a. Firstly ask the child if there are any immediate concerns he/she would like to raise.
- b. This section, or parts thereof, should only be completed if contextually relevant and/or appropriate (respecting security and confidentiality).
- c. The list of protection concerns should be answered by the field/social worker, and not asked directly to the child. Information should be sought through conversation with the child during which relevant information is elicited, and observation of the child. If there is no evident concern (or if the interviewer is not able to detect non-obvious protection concerns), further information on protection concerns may be collected at a later stage beyond registration.
- d. “Serious Health Issue” is any health issue which requires imperative medical attention.
- e. Disabled children include children that may have physical, mental, sensory (blind, deaf, deaf-blind), learning or psychosocial impairments.
- 12. Section 8 – Details of Interviewer:
- a. Please ensure you have again informed the child of how the information will be used and what the next steps in the tracing process will be.
- b. All field/social workers interviewing children must sign and date the registration form
